BEST OVERALL ACT PREP COURSE: PREPSCHOLAR

PrepScholar makes it to the top because of its tough library of effective & relevant practice material. Offering one of the largest and high-quality sets of practice questions and tests in the prepping industry, other prep services providers are struggling to keep up with PrepScholar. But PrepScholar not just offers students a boatload of solid practice work, they also issue one of the amplest and most well-planned schedules around. In more than 40 separate lessons, they guide students gradually through what, when, and how to study and how to attempt the ACT. They cover every part of the material on a strictly scheduled basis to maximize gains.

Also, PrepScholar offers amazing informative lessons with a diverse approach to teaching. These lessons include a mixture of both text-based instructions and video lectures.

PrepScholar covers every provable point on the ACT in detail and thoroughly describes both the content section and strategy section of a particular lesson.

PrepScholar has some of the best practice materials in the industry as they offer more than 2,400 practice questions and 5 full-length practice tests. While PrepScholar's 2,400 questions aren't quite as innumerable as Testive's, it's prominent to note in mind that 3,000 questions of Testive are used for both their SAT and ACT review. When PrepScholar's ACT questions are combined with their SAT material via their Dual SAT + ACT course, you get more than 9,500 practice questions & 15 full-length practice tests.

BEST ACT PREP CLASSES: PRINCETON REVIEW

Princeton Review offers one of the best all-around syllabus, curriculums, and a package of study materials in ACT prep. Their ACT prep course includes instructional methods, consisting of live classes, video lessons, textbooks, practice works, and even tutoring with their top-tier plan.

The quality of their live classes & video content is excellent in the ACT prep industry and we appraise this as the best part of the course. The video lectures are accompanied by live sessions with teachers who know the ACT thoroughly. The Princeton Review live classes contain a load of content review and testing strategies, as well as helpful side tips, from the expert teachers.

The video lessons are obviously the centerpiece of the Princeton Review ACT prep course. Knowing how difficult it is to keep a teenager's attention for more than a few minutes, Princeton cleverly breaks down its video lectures into short, interesting segments. Each mini-lesson is only 4 to 10 minutes long.

Princeton Review will have you take a fully proctored practice exam throughout your live class schedule and before exam day. Despite the fact that it may appear to be a disadvantage, this is a significant benefit. Taking practice tests under exam-like situations is typically the most effective way to prepare.

BEST VALUE ACT PREP COURSE: MAGOOSH

Magoosh is on our list of the best ACT prep courses in part because of its affordability. The value of this course cannot be underestimated, especially when their flagship ACT prep course offers are under $150.

Despite being a low-cost course, Magoosh provides a substantial amount of practice material. With over 250 video lectures, over 1,300 practice questions, and up to four full-length practice exams, it's hard to believe they can provide all of this for such a low fee. But it wasn't only the quantity that wowed our team; the quality was also excellent.

Students have access to a large collection of video training, as well as some excellent practice problems and four practice examinations. But, even more, significant than the practice questions, Magoosh provides a text and video explanation for each issue.

The Magoosh prep bundle focuses on getting the most bang for your cash. You won't get better value for your money anywhere else. This prep course will not break the bank, with price points of roughly $100, $120, and $130 for their three self-paced, online-only programs. Additionally, their new live class format (which includes 16 hours of live class work) is available for roughly $400.

The explanations in the text are quite detailed and written in an easy-to-understand manner. Furthermore, many of them include images and diagrams to aid in the visualization of the answer. To be honest, the text explanations are better than the practice questions provided by several prep organizations.

BEST ACT TESTING STRATEGIES: PREP EXPERT

Shaan's 100 self-created ACT testing tactics, which helped him get a flawless SAT score, are the focus of the course (the strategies have been tweaked to apply to both the SAT and ACT). I'll go through these testing methodologies in more detail below, but in general, I liked how Prep Expert didn't waste your time with tens of hours of normal content review.

Prep Expert does so primarily through 36 hours of live online coaching (if you're taking the 6-week or 3-week course) and prepared video lectures. Their live online classes were fascinating, instructive, and really beneficial to me. Prep Expert instructors have all scored in the top 1% of all ACT takers and have been schooled in Shaan's testing strategies, ensuring that you receive a consistent lesson style and trainers.

The bundle of 100 testing techniques designed by founder Shaan Patel is the clear highlight of the Prep Expert ACT prep program. Over a decade ago, Shaan developed these tactics while studying for the SAT. Despite the fact that these approaches are now over a decade old and were initially devised for the previous SAT, they still apply and perform well for the ACT.

THE SAFE ACT PREP CHOICE: KAPLAN

Kaplan provides a comprehensive course schedule as well as high-quality study resources. The key distinction between these two test prep behemoths' ACT prep programs is that Kaplan has teamed directly with the ACT exam's creators.

Students have direct access to official ACT questions and tests that have been utilized previously. The importance of this practical exercise cannot be emphasized. Princeton does a fantastic job of designing problems, but real-world issues will always have a tiny advantage. Kaplan also provides outstanding educational materials in addition to excellent practice activities.

Kaplan provides its students with a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to practice with actual ACT questions. This is a unique feature that Kaplan offers that no one else can match. The collaboration between Kaplan and ACT is so close that it's listed on ACT's website as an official course, and it's driven by Kaplan's platform and expertise.

Kaplan, like Princeton Review, offers some excellent video lectures. However, the two prep businesses take distinct approaches to format. Your instructor sits behind a desk on camera in Kaplan's video lessons. Notes and crucial points appear on the screen next to him or her as he or she speaks. They frequently take a moment to work on a practice problem to help illustrate the points they're attempting to make.

Kaplan also keeps their films brief and sweet, similar to how Princeton Review does things. These captivating videos are only 7 to 12 minutes long, which is exactly enough time to get the message across without losing a 17-year-old's attention.
